This is my first time making a trainer. So if you have any suggestions feel free to make them.Q: Symfony2 - Obtain view path from entity I'm trying to obtain the view path of a given entity object. Is it possible to get the path of the template that is rendered for the currently logged in user? I currently have the path of the template used by the actual view for that user, and I thought about using a hack to obtain the current user's path, but I think there's a "proper" way to do it. Maybe using the associated twig extension? I'm using Twig 1.3 A: You can try Twig's {{ path('your_action', {'id':your_entity_id}) }} So for example: {{ path('your_action', {'id':entity.id }) }} DevNull (2019) Are you ready for a new decade of neglect? A revival of the genre? Whether or not you identify as a fan of horror, you've probably at least come across the rumor that Netflix is going to remake classics such as The Evil Dead and The Texas Chain Saw Massacre, and the upcoming The Bye Bye Man. And if you're one of the people that were overjoyed by the news of the DVD release of the original Halloween on October 23, then prepare for the dreaded wait until next October. Luckily, you don't have to wait for the streaming service to show up to market the movies, as Devnull comes right out of nowhere with a fascinating psychological horror that focuses on an occultist priest who is using his knowledge of rituals to continue his work by murderously teaching others his exact methods and deeply honed aesthetic. So how does Devnull create such a unique take on the supernatural thriller genre, while keeping it grounded in reality? The answer? A newfound desire to do things that were never done before. The basic concept of the movie is fairly simple: a group of teenagers who attend a remote Catholic boarding school for boys are being stalked by a strange, friendly, veiled old man who claims to be a priest. When a student is brutally murdered and his body dumped in the school's woods, the boys, who have no idea who the old man is or how he is connected to their troubles, begin to realize that the killer is roaming the area and stalking
