It is the second episode of the fifth season, and the 38th episode of the series. Set in the 24th century, the series follows the adventures of the Starfleet crew of the Federation starship Enterprise-D. In this episode, a group of stubborn test subjects rebel against their planned medical testing. Meanwhile, Captain Picard's daughter, Letitia, returns, following a mission. Plot The Enterprise arrives in the Class-M planet Sisko along with a group of medical scientists who are in the final stages of testing a food supplement called "GR-104". When the Enterprise crew begins to ration the food, the scientists' former test subjects who are still hungry force a takeover of the Enterprise. The takeover is halted, but the scientists decide that the test subjects need further studies to determine exactly how GR-104 reacts with the human body and force them to undergo the tests. When the Enterprise crew attempts to move the scientists and their test subjects off the planet, the uprising of test subjects (who call themselves the "GR-104 Rebels") begins. The idea of the game

It's an interactive VR game and in Shoppe Keep 2 you run around in the virtual world and buy various products at stores which are in the virtual shops. Your goal is to purchase everything you see so as to make the store the most expensive store in the area.

The game atmosphere is similar to "Minecraft" and you can play together with friends on different cities using multiplayer mode.

The virtual city has a piano in it and you can play a classical piano tune by turning on the song.

How to play

Download the Android application (install the game application on the Smartphone) and you can play easily on your smartphone. If you have a compatible headset, then you can enjoy the game with VR functions even better.

After you download the game application, you can start the game directly by clicking the "Play" button on the main page of the application. You can select Multiplayer or Solo mode.

In multiplayer mode, you can create your own team with friends easily in order to play together.

In Solo Mode, you only play against the computer.

Soundtrack

With the release of the game, the sound team have done a big job to make lots of different areas such as flower shop, jewelry shop, clothing shop, kitchen, etc very different in terms of music.

New media players have to be purchased to look through the different music and you can select the song you like and then download it.

What's new in Shoppe Keep 2 - Soundtrack:

I really liked The Happier Things video. It was easy to get behind the characters of course and it was a storyline that a lot of people could possibly relate to. I was also intrigued by the low-budget look to the video. I have to admit that I was cough skeptical when I saw that the project was going to be The Shopkeepers. I thought, it has to be a "quick and dirty" space soap opera with cheap but still passable CGI. Maybe the storyline is good and I'll be able to get past my skepticism. Maybe it's a niche market that no one is really buying. Maybe this is just too corny and could possibly be fully taken the wrong way. As the Shopkeepers continued, I wanted to watch it. Even where I initially resisted its somewhat on-the-nose premise I somehow found myself drawn to it. I pretty much tuned in with an open mind, and then my interest and my skepticism were challenged cough. I also sort of became caught up in the character of Joanna (Shelby Connelly), much as I've been drawn to Ashley (Heather O'Rourke) and even Rebecca herself (Caitlin Stasey). Joanna is the kind of character that makes it easy to become attached to. She's the kind of character who is at a crossroads in her life, who has taken some really stupid, really cowardly, really self-centered, probably really unhealthy decisions, who is trying to figure her life out just as she's realizing her high school sweetheart (Max) is single, in love with her, and ready to propose.... And then he backs out and Joanna becomes really sad. That approach to storytelling is sadly a little common for some kinds of stories and movies and TV shows. Too often, as the plot gets more and more extreme, the characters start acting out not out of real motivation but just because the writing itself gets pretty extreme. And when that happens you end up with a message a little too strongly dominating the whole thing. While I certainly understand and empathize with the responses to some representations of social issues, I think the goal is to tell stories that will make people uncomfortable, that will give them food for thought and in the end serve as reminders of the complexity and nuance of the social issues represented. The Shopkeepers does so well. Having said that, I've seen plenty of films and TV shows and commercials that
